THE BA PROGRAM

Students completing this program will have demonstrated:

- understanding of the diversity of cultural values reflected in different patterns of social and political organization and systems of communication (symbolic and linguistic)
- the ability to think critically and to apply the scientific method in the various sub-fields of the discipline (cultural, biological, archaeology, linguistics, and applied)
- understanding of the complex and inter-related processes of change (biological and cultural evolution, diffusion, colonialism, globalization) both within cultures and across cultural boundaries
- a solid grasp of the relevance of anthropology to present-day policy and social issues such as human rights, health, historical preservation, conservation, economic development, language use, and cultural practices.
- practical skills needed to assume the roles and responsibilities of a productive member of an increasingly global society (oral and written skills, research and library skills, technical computer skills) through classroom assignments, fieldwork, and professional service opportunities.

Concerned with the world's diverse cultures, anthropology provides education and experience to help students understand the perspectives of peoples in other places, settings, and times. It develops critical and analytical skills and empathic understanding. Students can pursue a wide number of anthropological fields: social and cultural, archaeological, linguistic, and biological.

Humboldt State's unique setting in proximity to nine Native American tribes presents a rare opportunity for learning about the first Nations of North America and their contemporary relationships to other cultures of the U.S. Our region's cultural richness includes immigrant communities and families as well as students and faculty of diverse nationalities at HSU. Combined with our department's emphasis on international and applied experience, this context allows our students to obtain an academic and experiential education in the study of culture.

Anthropology provides an excellent liberal arts background, benefiting many careers. Wherever crosscultural relations are present, or wherever culturally broad perspectives are valuable (education, social services, medicine, business, legal services, and journalism), anthropologists can make strong contributions.

Humboldt's program provides a strong foundation for graduate study. Graduates have established careers in archaeology, linguistics, international development, foreign affairs, health services, multicultural education, environmental planning and research, biological and medical research, cultural resource management, and professional anthropology.

Preparation

At the high school level, students can prepare for a major in Anthropology through the study of college preparatory courses, especially including second-language learning, social sciences, mathematics, and biology. At the university level we encourage students to continue with a carefully-planned breadth of education in these areas.

Please obtain a Major Contract form as soon as you decide to major in anthropology. You can pick one up from the departmental office, or print a copy from the Anthropology home page (www.humboldt.edu/anthropology). Review the form with your advisor each semester, and ask how to best apply international study and field school work toward the requirements of your major.

THE APPLIED ANTHROPOLOGY MA PROGRAM

Students completing this program will have demonstrated that they:

- exhibit substantive knowledge of the field of applied anthropology, and an advanced ability to apply disciplinary principles, theories, methods, and approaches to address complex issues within academic and non-academic settings.
- possess professional-level expertise in a concentrated area, an advanced ability to comprehend, conceive, design, and execute meaningful research in that area
- possess a wide range of graduate level practical and professional skills enabling one to function efficiently in academic and non-academic settings, including research and problem-solving skills, effective multi-modal communication, initiative, adaptability perseverance, and capacity to proactively market skills and expertise
- display knowledge and competency in anthropological ethics and embrace social responsibility in research, teaching and service.

The MA in Applied Anthropology is a rigorous yet flexible program focused on building competitive, marketable skills. Applied Anthropology is the application of anthropological perspectives, methods, theories, and practices to human and environmental problems in academic, professional, and global contexts. Applied Anthropology crosses traditional disciplinary boundaries and is relevant to students of anthropology, history, human biology, environmental studies, religious studies, sociology, art, geography, international studies, political science, and many other areas.

The program begins with a five-week Summer Institute held on the HSU campus, during which students will build camaraderie and receive rigorous hands-on methods training. While on campus, students work with resources such as the archaeology and biological anthropology laboratories, cultural artifact & skeletal collections, and simulated archaeological site. After the Summer Institute, students undertake the remaining coursework via online distance learning, either full-time (three semesters) or part-time (six semesters). Students who would like to be on campus are welcomed and will have access to departmental facilities.

Students will be held to rigorous standards and as such, graduates will gain competitive, broadly applicable skills and be in a position to confidently apply anthropological perspectives, theories, and methods to a variety of careers in today's academic, non-academic, and increasingly global job market.

unit of ANTH 699 (Independent Study), normally taken concurrently, for which additional assignments will be required.

The advisor/thesis chair may assign the focus elective. Any advisor assigned requirements will be communicated during the first semester in the MA program.

In some cases, the advisor may request/permit completion of the focus elective by enrolling in 3 units of ANTH 699 Independent Study and serving as a teaching assistant in a relevant course (during which competence in the material must be demonstrated).

If a student changes thesis focus during the program, a new focus elective may be required, at the discretion of the advisor.

A course taken prior to the program or outside of HSU may be used to meet this requirement if it was graduate level, not counted toward any other degree, transferable, and taken within 7 years of the completion of the MA degree

Internship/Field Placement Requirement (ANTH 682)

Students are required to complete 180 hours of advisor-approved field placement (internship) that is focused on gaining hands-on applied experience in the emphasis area. The field placement may, but is not required to be, directly related to MA thesis research. Field school(s) may fulfill some but not all internship hours, at the discretion of the advisor, but only if such hours are in excess of any hours for which academic credit (units) are earned and applied to meet the focus elective requirement.

MA Thesis (ANTH 690): Related to emphasis. Students may enroll in additional courses to develop interests and expertise and enable competent completion of specialized thesis topics.
